

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Glen Anderson
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 01, 2014 2:22 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: We need TRANSPARENCY!!! Open RSP subcommittee meetings to the public.

Mar 1, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Glen Anderson

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Michele Paxson
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 01, 2014 4:52 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 1, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Michele Paxson

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Klaus Steinbrecher
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, March 02, 2014 10:23 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 2, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Klaus Steinbrecher

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Susan Pottle
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, March 02, 2014 2:24 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 2, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Pottle

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Anthony Ippolito
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, March 02, 2014 2:24 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 2, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Anthony Ippolito

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Tanya Rincon
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Wednesday, March 05, 2014 6:01 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Tanya Rincon

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Deborah Winslow <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Friday, March 07, 2014 4:35 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 7, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Deborah Winslow

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of David Davidson
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 08, 2014 10:38 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 8, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Davidson

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Florha Jones
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 08, 2014 12:38 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 8, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Florha Jones

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Rael Nidess
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, March 09, 2014 9:42 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 9, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Dr. Rael Nidess

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Michele Paxson
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 15, 2014 9:30 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 15, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Michele Paxson

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Betty Chan
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 15, 2014 12:59 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 14, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Betty Chan

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Betty Chan
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 15, 2014 12:59 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 14, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Betty Chan

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Betty Chan
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, March 15, 2014 12:59 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 14, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Betty Chan

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Sandy Commons
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Monday, March 24, 2014 12:34 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 23, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sandy Commons

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Jeff Thompson
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Tuesday, March 25, 2014 1:09 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Mar 25, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeff Thompson