

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Dearis Anthony <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, April 05, 2014 10:07 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dearis Anthony

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Carolyn Friedman
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, April 05, 2014 9:06 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Dr. Carolyn Friedman

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of HARRISON P BERTRAM <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, April 06, 2014 5:08 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 6, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. HARRISON P BERTRAM

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of James & Leslea Kunz <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Thursday, April 10, 2014 1:06 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 10, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. James & Leslea Kunz

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Mary MacKay
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, April 12, 2014 12:40 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 12, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mary MacKay

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Claire Cooney
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, April 13, 2014 7:13 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 13, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Claire Cooney

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Art Collins
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, April 19, 2014 4:27 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 19, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Art Collins

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Kathy Putnam
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Friday, April 25, 2014 1:15 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 25, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kathy Putnam

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Deborah Goode
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, April 26, 2014 10:50 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 26, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Deborah Goode

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Karen Naumann
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Wednesday, April 30, 2014 11:42 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Apr 30, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Karen Naumann