

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Rachel Lundberg
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Tuesday, July 01, 2014 11:36 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 1, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Rachel Lundberg

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of kevin p
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Wednesday, July 02, 2014 3:36 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 2, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. kevin p

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Jill Blevins
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Friday, July 04, 2014 11:17 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 4, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jill Blevins

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Wanda Ballentine
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 6:49 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Wanda Ballentine

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of e p
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 5:49 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. e p

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Lois Jordan
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 4:49 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lois Jordan

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Patricia Emmert
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 3:19 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Emmert

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Robert & Petra Sullivan, MD <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 3:19 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Dr. Robert & Petra Sullivan, MD

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Patricia Emmert <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 3:19 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Emmert

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Henry Weinberg
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 1:18 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Dr. Henry Weinberg

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Chantal Dothey
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 12:48 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Dr. Chantal Dothey

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Bill Herman
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 12:48 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bill Herman

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Monique TONET
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 12:48 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Monique TONET

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Barbara Harrison
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 9:48 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Harrison

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Donna Greenwell <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 9:48 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Donna Greenwell

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Richard Petzold <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 8:48 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Petzold

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Judy Moran
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 8:18 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Ms. Judy Moran

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Richard Heinlein <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Saturday, July 05, 2014 8:18 AM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 5, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Heinlein

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Michael F. Kolassa <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, July 06, 2014 1:21 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 6, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael F. Kolassa

Trexler, Dale L CIV OSD OGC (US)

From: Project On Government Oversight <[REDACTED]> on behalf of Michelle Gale
<[REDACTED]>
Sent: Monday, July 07, 2014 7:24 PM
To: WHS Pentagon EM Mailbox Response Systems Panel DSD
Subject: Open RSP Subcommittee Meetings to the Public

Jul 7, 2014

Ms. Terri Saunders

Dear Ms. Saunders,

I urge you to open up subcommittee meetings of the Response Systems To Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel (RSP) to the public to increase transparency with how the Department of Defense is dealing with the epidemic of sexual assault in the military.

I stand with the Project On Government Oversight (POGO) in applauding the creation of the RSP to improve the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault crimes in the military, but the RSP's decision to hold subcommittee meetings behind closed doors undermines the panel's efforts and transparency in the Defense Department.

For too long, sexual assaults in the military and the investigations of alleged assaults were marginalized and obstructed. As the DoD moves to change the way it deals with these cases, it is important that it is committed to the highest standards of transparency. A series of scandals involving military leaders in sexual assault prevention has shaken the public's confidence in the military's ability to properly investigate cases of sexual assault. Ensuring that RSP subcommittee meetings are public and transparent will help restore the public's trust in the process and allow for all interested parties to be more closely involved in this crucial work.

Sincerely,

Dr. Michelle Gale