

Colonel Tracy A. Neal-Walden serves as Deputy Director, Psychological Health, Air Force Medical Support Agency, Office of the Surgeon General. She advises and coordinates with senior Air Force leaders, Congressional staff, Health Affairs, AFMOA and the sister Services on psychological health policy matters.

Colonel Neal-Walden is a clinical psychologist with fellowship specialty training in clinical health psychology. She has served previously as Commander, 412th Medical Operations Squadron, Edwards AFB, CA. During that time, she was part of an executive team that executed over $21M dollars of healthcare annually for more than 10,000 beneficiaries. Her Air Force experience has been diverse to include serving as the AF PDHRA lead agent, directing the mental health flights at Osan AB and at Peterson AFB, numerous leadership positions and career broadening assignments. Col Neal-Walden received her Bachelors in Psychology in 1989 at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, her PhD in Clinical Psychology at Hahnemann University in 1996, and did her Post-Doctoral Fellowship in Clinical Health Psychology at Wilford Hall Medical Center, Texas, in 2008.