

Pamela Jacobs, J.D.

Pamela Jacobs is an attorney, trainer, speaker, and consultant specializing in sexual assault and domestic violence intervention and prevention. She has served as a director of a statewide domestic violence and sexual assault coalition and as an attorney serving survivors of sexual assault, domestic violence, and human trafficking for over twelve years.

Pam has provided hundreds of trainings to attorneys, military personnel and command staff, law enforcement, healthcare professionals, advocates, and community members. Her trainings have focused on emerging legal issues in sexual assault and domestic violence, working with military survivors, child custody and abduction considerations, rethinking accessibility, ethical advocacy and representation, providing trauma-informed services, and more.

In addition to her extensive advocacy work, Pam has also served as an adjunct professor for seven years and as a law clerk in both state and federal court. She received her Juris Doctorate from Washburn University School of Law, graduating with Dean's Honors, and her Bachelor of Business Administration from Lincoln University, graduating Summa Cum Laude.

As an advocate, attorney, and also a survivor of childhood sexual abuse and homelessness, Pam uses her experiences to help empower us all to end interpersonal violence in our homes, schools, businesses, and communities.

Pam provides consultation services, keynote addresses, and training events aimed at helping individuals and professionals improve their response to, and ultimately prevent, sexual assault and domestic violence.
